

Castillo del Cañón

ANCIENT HISTORY MEETS MODERN
LUXURY IN SHADY CANYON

Hailed as "a pearl among emeralds," the Alhambra in Granada, Spain is an appreciated example of architecture and decorative adornment around the world. At the Alhambra, arabesque colonnades, filigreed domes and intricately carved marble columns reveal romantic influences from Byzantine empires, Moorish conquests and Spanish kings. Altogether, the style is now known as Andalusian—named for this beautiful region of Spain.

Now, Rob Glass brings the romance and history of the Alhambra and the Andalusian regions to Shady Canyon at Castillo del Cañón. Glass is renowned for bringing together old and new to create homes of enduring quality, with an historical authenticity that remains timeless. At the Castillo, Glass has taken his signature approach to designing heirloom estate residences, with richly layered antique European materials, cultural treasures and genuine artifacts with modern luxury.

AT CASTILLO DEL CAÑON, GLASS WAS INSPIRED BY THE ALHAMBRA'S DECORATIVE ARCHITECTURE AND THE LAYERED APPLICATION OF VARIOUS ARCHITECTURAL STYLES TO CREATE A UNIQUE RESIDENCE WITH A SENSE OF PLACE AND HISTORY

The Inspiration for Castillo del Cañón:

Castillo del Cañón (or "Castle of the Canyon") is Glass Construction Corporation's newest endeavor. A study in Andalusian romance and luxe modern-day livability, the Castillo has become an instant Shady Canyon landmark. Here is an inviting m_lange of antique and cutting-edge, of intimate interiors and alfresco spaces. A spacious seven-bedroom, 10-bathroom "castle" overlooking a land preserve, studded with sycamores and sage. A refreshing combination of space and privacy with panoramas of the nearby canyons, golf course and city lights.

At Castillo del Cañón, Glass was inspired by the Alhambra's decorative architecture and the layered application of various architectural styles to create a unique residence with a sense of place and history. Filigreed iron lantern light galleries composed of graceful arabesque arches, while Byzantine arcades carved of marble reveal their detailed relief designs. Hand-painted French tiles, intricately paneled ceilings and vintage European wood floors all go into recreating the experience of a true Andalusian residence.

The Glass Collection: The Difference is in the Details

For four generations, the Glass family has designed and built custom residences noted for their luxurious Old World style. From high-profile celebrity residences to the ultra-private estates of today's captains of industry, Glass Construction Corporation's classical approach is seen in the homes' architecture, craftsmanship and elegant finishes, including the incorporation of authentic materials and antiques from Europe.

The Glass family travels the globe, from Milan to Morocco, Paris to Provence, Chianti to the Cinque Terre for inspiration from the most beautiful estates in the world, bringing back the breathtaking antiques that give Glass projects such a unique sense of history, refinement and luxury in modern-day living.

To view this estate, contact John McMonagle at 949.640.3504 or go to www.McMonagleGroup.com